

ACCELERATED LEARNING TECHNIQUES

Critical to the delivery of our Certificate IV in Massage Therapy Practice (HLT40307) and Diploma of Remedial Massage (HLT50307) is the use of accelerated learning techniques.

So what are 'Accelerated Learning Techniques'?

Remember back to school, college or university, when your teacher stood at the front of the room and just talked for hours on end and you nearly fell asleep? We don't do that!

Have you ever wondered why you find it difficult to recall the headline on yesterday's paper, yet if you hear a song that you haven't heard for years, the words come flooding back as soon as it starts?

People learn in different ways; some are visual learners who remember pictures and create linked images in their mind, some people are auditory learners who prefer to listen and read, and the kinaesthetic learners love to get physically involved and just give things a go.

Our coaches utilise all three learning styles throughout the course, to teach everything from remembering the names of your classmates to the elements that comprise each cell in the human body.

Our philosophy is that learning should be fun, because if you're laughing you're listening and if you're listening you're learning!

At the start of your course you will learn about effective communication skills, how to build great relationships and to identify the different behaviours and characteristics that people exhibit. We continue to encourage you to practice your advanced communication techniques every day because making people feel special, important and worthwhile is vital to the development of successful relationships and ultimately a great business.

After graduating, it is often the fun kinaesthetic environment our students remember most; our massage and palpating activities wearing blindfolds is always a favourite! If you like fun, laughter and a hands-on approach to learning, you're going to love it at the Q Academy!
